Weatherproofing Advisors were successfully appointed to replace the glazed atrium and front of store at Tesco Bury, delivering a durable, weather-resistant solution with minimal disruption to operations.

Weatherproofing Advisors inspected the glazed atrium at the front of the Tesco store in Bury to determine the best solution for persistent leaks. After assessment, it was decided that replacing the entire structure and glazing would be the most effective approach.

The atrium above the checkouts had been causing significant water ingress, affecting internal businesses and the store's front area. Given the scale and complexity, the works required precise planning to minimise disruption. An internal scaffold was erected to allow safe overhead work without risk to customers, enabling nearby concessions to remain open and operations to continue throughout the project.

The works involved removing the old glazing and installing new, modern panels, with additional railings to enhance the exterior. These upgrades resolved the leaks and gave the building a cleaner, more contemporary appearance.

The project began with the installation of an internal birdcage scaffold, incorporating a custom “pyramid step-up” platform to suit the atrium’s unique shape. This specialist design allowed safe access to the underside of the structure for removing the existing glazing. To maintain public safety and minimise disruption, fully boarded corridors were installed beneath working areas, ensuring uninterrupted passage for customers and staff.

Externally, scaffold ramps were set up on both sides of the atrium, along with an independent scaffold structure at the store’s front. This also featured a boarded pedestrian corridor, enabling safe public access throughout the works.

The existing glazing was carefully removed and replaced with modern panels, while new railings gave the structure a cleaner, contemporary look. To create a consistent appearance across the storefront, the front elevation glazing was also renewed, and a new Tesco sign installed on the façade.
